

Some Take The Highway

Words and music by Jenica Rayne ©2010

you take the road
i'll walk in just a little slower than i have been i'm not in a hurry for love anymore i'm not convinced cause that never worked before you can take the road but i'll walk the path in

like the tides
the ebb and the flow
people come and then
people go
learning lessons
along the way
feel the fear but then
do it anyway
some take the road
some take the highway

we're from different places
we've led different lives
we're all the same
if we don't over analyze
hearts get shattered
all of the time
we are prisoners
of our minds

only love can realign

we all stumble
sometimes we fall
that's just life
there ain't no crystal ball changing your mind
can change your day
pick yourself up
come on kiss your tears away

some take the road
some take the highway

we're from different places
we've led different lives
we're all the same
if we don't over analyze
hearts get shattered
all of the time
we are prisoners
of our minds

only love can realign

we're from different places
we've led different lives
we're all the same
if we don't over analyze
hearts get shattered
all of the time
we are prisoners
of our minds
only love can realign
we are prisoners of our minds

only love can realign